HISTORY

The first people to live in the area were the Native American tribe known as the Bay Miwoks or the Northern Valley Yokuts. They were peaceful people who enjoyed singing and dancing, and lived mostly on acorn gruel, fish, game, berries and seeds. They lived in dome shaped houses thatched with tulle.

The first European explorer of Contra Costa County was Pedro Fages in 1772. But it wasn't until 65 years later that Europeans settled here. In the late 1830's, Dr. John Marsh established himself as the first American citizen and physician in the area. He soon purchased a 12 X 10 mile grant for $500 and used the land primarily for cattle. In 1837, Dr. Marsh built a large stone manor house which still stands today, 2.5 miles south of Brentwood on Marsh Creek Road.

By 1890, Brentwood became the largest shipping point for wheat and barley between New Orleans and San Francisco. It incorporated into a city in 1948, but remains an agricultural town even today. Crops raised here in the past, and still today, include grain, alfalfa, apricots, nectarines, peaches, plums, cherries, figs, pears, walnuts, almonds, pistachios, tomatoes, corn, melons, squash, and lettuce. A $500,000 irrigation system was installed by Balfour Guthrie Investment Company in 1913, allowing Brentwood to support these thriving orchards of apricots, peaches, and cherries. By the 1920's, Brentwood became well known as one of California's agricultural centers. The City of Brentwood incorporated in 1948 and maintains its advantage as the only incorporated city in East Contra Costa County.
